

Lori Johnson Murawski

Lori Johnson Murawski serves as the Chief Community Relations Officer at TelComm Credit Union, a dynamic and expanding financial institution in Springfield and southwest Missouri. With a B.S. in Public Relations from Missouri State University and an M.B.A. from Drury University, Lori brings a wealth of experience and a passion for building meaningful connections within her community.

Lori's professional path is marked by versatility and growth across several industries. She started in journalism, working with Missouri State University's newspaper and freelancing for the Springfield Business Journal. Her commitment to making a difference led her to the non-profit sector, where she led fundraising and special event coordination for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society in Springfield. Lori then transitioned into the technology manufacturing industry, handling sales and purchasing at Positronic Industries.

Lori's journey eventually brought her to the credit union movement, where she has excelled in marketing and business development at both Multipli and TelComm Credit Unions. Along the way, she has mentored many young professional women through programs with the Association of Women in Communications, Drury University, and United Way of the Ozarks.

Volunteerism is at the heart of Lori's life. She has taken on leadership roles such as President of the Rotary Club of Springfield Southeast, President of the Drury University Alumni Council, and President of the Association of Women in Communications. Her service extends to the boards of the Junior League of Springfield and Court Appointed Special Advocates.

Lori has also chaired the 2025 Rotary District #6080 Conference and contributed her time and energy to numerous local charities, including DCO, the American Diabetes Association, the Salvation Army, the Boys & Girls Club, and many others.

Outside of her professional and community commitments, Lori enjoys a vibrant personal life. She's been married to her husband, Randy Murawski, for 11 years, and together they dote on their rescue Blue Heeler, Yadi—named after her favorite St. Louis Cardinals player.

Lori loves cheering on the Chiefs and the Cardinals, catching the latest movies, or listening to her book club picks on Audible. Whether she's traveling, spending time with family, or capturing the beauty of nature through her lens, Lori finds joy in the simple moments—and encourages others to do the same.
