

Erin Malone

Erin Malone serves as Director of Human Resources at SRC, where she brings more than 15 years of experience within the organization and a strong passion for developing people, culture, and leadership. In her role, Erin partners closely with leaders and employees to support organizational growth, foster engagement, and create a workplace where people can thrive both professionally and personally.

Erin earned her MBA from Missouri State University, which strengthened her interest in the intersection of business strategy and human behavior. Throughout her career at SRC, she has built a reputation for being a trusted advisor, known for her collaborative leadership style and commitment to building strong, high-performing teams.

In addition to her professional role, Erin serves on the Board of Directors for CASA of Southwest Missouri, supporting advocacy efforts for children in the foster care system and giving back to the local community.

Outside of work, Erin enjoys spending time with her husband, two children, and their dog. She loves being outdoors and can often be found on the golf course whenever she gets the chance.
